Literacy

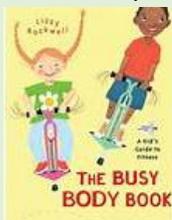

Listen to our daily stories and songs on Tapestry.

Our book this week is
The Busy Body Book:

<https://youtu.be/XZqRtu7I-6Y>

Discuss what sort of book this is.

Is it a made-up story? (fiction)
Or is it true facts? (non-fiction)

Have you heard of a non-fiction book before? Can you think of any other non-fiction books?

Communication and Language

Mouth movements

Show your child how to make different mouth movements (blowing, sucking, tongue stretching and wiggling). Use a mirror to look at the mouth movement and encourage your child to make the movements in the same mirror.

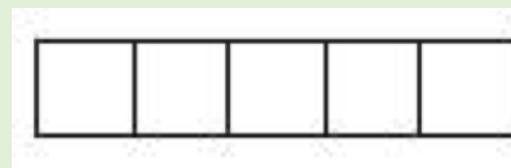

Voice Sounds

Show your child how to make sounds with their voices (whee, boing, oh, ssss, shshsh, mmmooo, oooooo, chchchch, zzzz, and tick tock). Do this in the mirror so they can see their mouth shape change as they make the different sounds.

Maths

Make a 5 frame like the picture below.

Can you collect 4 objects? Place them on the 5 frame and say "1, 2, 3, 4 I have 4 cubes (or whatever you have collected!)"

You can try this for numbers 1, 2, 3 and 4. Make sure you say the sentence! :)

Personal, Social and Emotional Development

Play Simon Says.

Listen carefully! Only complete the action if Simon Says! Focus on body parts, e.g. point to your wrists, touch your knee, pat your shoulders.

Take it in turns to be Simon?!

Expressive Arts and Design

Can you try and make your own skeleton? You could use junk modelling? Maybe toilet rolls, pasta or cotton buds like in the pictures.

Try asking someone to draw around you. Can you compare your body drawing with other people in your family?

Draw or paint your own skeleton inside your body!

Physical Development

Remember the importance of making marks?!
Let's strengthen those hand muscles! If you have some play dough at home (or a squishy toy / teddy) do some dough disco together!

Our mark this week is going to be spirals.

Can you draw as many spirals as you can?
How big can you make your spirals? How many spirals can you make? Where can you make your marks this week?

Don't forget to show us where you make these marks on Tapestry!

Understanding of The World

Can you move in the different ways described in The Busy Body Book?
Try out: bounce, stretch, run, catch, throw, jump, twist and twirl.

You might like to create an obstacle course at home that includes some of these movements. Even better – do it outside if you can!

Can your body make any other moves?

Well-being

Watch Vicky's Wellness Wednesday video.

Can you complete this skeleton yoga?
